

Everyday U.S cattle producers bring you
the safest beef in the world.
Thank you, U.S. Senate, for keeping it that way.

Four Canadian born and raised cattle have been identified with mad cow. Two since January.

Mad Cow is fatal in animals and linked to a fatal disease in humans. Yet, USDA bureaucrats are rushing to re-open the U.S. border to Canadian beef and cattle.

USDA's own Inspector General criticized the agency:
In response to industry pressure, USDA knowingly approved imports of high-risk Canadian beef products in violation of its own ban.

U.S. Federal Judge Richard Cebull also criticized USDA:
"The USDA has evidenced a preconceived intention, based upon inappropriate considerations, to rush to reopen the border regardless of uncertainties in the agency's knowledge of the possible impacts on human and animal health."

And, on March 3rd, the U.S. Senate said "NO" to USDA's plan.

Our high health and safety standards are needed to protect consumers, the beef industry and U.S. jobs.

U.S. HOUSE: Support the resolution of disapproval against USDA's weakening of U.S. import standards.

Paid for by the Ranchers Cattlemen Action Legal Fund United Stockgrowers of America.

www.r-calfusa.com